Anne is a mother of three and lives in the south of Scotland.

Alan Windram: Old Macdonald. Alan has a wide range of theatrical and musical experience. In the last five years he has taken lead roles in musical theatre productions including 'Annie', 'Calamity Jane' and 'High Society'. The Sticky Kids Singalong Show is our latest musical show for young children. The show uses songs from the hugely popular Sticky Kids range of children's music and centres around the character of Molly Muddle.

Everyone loves Molly Muddle - the human equivalent of a party popper. Her hilarious mishaps and misunderstandings strike a chord with children everywhere and her young audience of Sticky Kids just love joining in the actions and learning the songs.

When Molly Muddle gets together with her good friend Old Macdonald the fun really begins. Strong visual characters, lively action songs, slapstick humour, repetition, rhyme, audience participation and an opportunity to be part of the action are all elements of the show that young Sticky Kids will love.

The show lasts just over an hour and includes songs about numbers, friends, healthy eating, keeping active... And we enjoy including special requests.

Anne Butler founder of Sticky Kids says...

"Music, song and theatre have great benefits for the development of children in their early years. At Sticky Kids we believe the work we do helps develop children's language and listening skills, helps children express imaginative ideas, encourages an active healthy lifestyle and increases their self-confidence. Young children love music and humour and instinctively respond to rhythm and song. The Sticky Kids Show is accessible to the very young and to children with special educational needs".
